Description: Tim and Lynn Martin in their home.

Lynn: "We really did feel when we retired that we were in good shape, and we had achieved what we thought, then, was the American dream."

Tim: "We were healthy, we were active, but we felt stuck."

Lynn: "I walked down the hall in our cute house and I looked at the carpets and I thought, 'Oh my, we have to replace these carpets.' And then I thought, 'I could go to Paris for the money it's going to cost me to replace these carpets.' That sort of was the seed. I said, 'I want you to know I'm so happy. I love you so much, and I love my life, and I love my house, and I love my dog, and it's not enough. All these places I visited for two or three days on vacation—I want to really stay and live there with the people.'"

Tim: "You know what this means. We have to come up with a plan that our financial advisor will buy."

Lynn: "We really thought he would say, 'You have lost your minds.'"

Tim: "We diversified our portfolio to the point where we felt we could live well into our nineties without any kind of financial burden."

Lynn: "The day we got in the car was the most exhilarating moment of my whole life."

Lynn: "We felt younger immediately. We went to Mexico, Buenos Aires, France. We went to England. We went to Portugal. We went to Morocco. We never stay any place less than a month."

Tim: "That conversation that we had changed our life in so many positive ways."

Lynn: "The challenge made us closer."
